Adding on information with a relative clause

Relative clauses come immediately after the noun to which they add information. They start with a relative pronoun (which, who, whose, when, where)

Cut up the sentences page along the dotted lines and mix them all up.

Can you match up each main clause with its appropriate ending? Look at these examples:

My school is in Sheffield,	which is a city in South Yorkshire.
My school is in Sheffield,	when I get home from school.

this makes sense

this doesn't make sense

Polar bears come from the Arctic,	when the dinner bell rings.
My brother looks just like my dad,	who never does any homework.
Lunchtime starts at 12:30,	when my older sister was ten.
The man wearing a gold chain is the Lord Mayor,	where all the others are stacked up.
I can't eat my sandwich because it's peanut butter,	whose hair curls the same way.
Robert is an extremely lazy boy,	who is a lunchtime supervisor.
We moved to Britain in 2007,	which I'm allergic to.
If you need a plaster, go and see Mr Austin,	where it is very cold and icy.
Go and put this dictionary on the shelf,	which means I don't have breakfast until 8am.
I go to swimming club every Saturday at 6am,	whose office is in the Town Hall.
